God is omnipresent

“You see many stars in the sky at night, but not when the sun rises. Can you therefore say that there are no stars in the heavens during the day? O man, because you cannot find God in the days of your ignorance say not that there is no God.”

--- Sri Ramakrishna.

Various ways to God

“Holy men are born on earth to show people the way to God. They teach differently. There are many paths leading to the same goal. Therefore the teachings of all saints are true.”

Sayings and Teachings

Express the inherent divinity

“All power is within you, you can do anything and everything. Believe in that, and do not believe that you are weak…..You can do anything and everything, without even the guidance of any one. All power is there. Stand up and express the divinity within you….Arise, Awake, Sleep no more. Within each of you there is the power to remove all wants and all miseries. Believe in this, and that power will be manifested.”

The devotees arrived at the retreat centre on the evening of Friday, the 4th of May and soon settled into the environment of the spiritual retreat. After a light supper prepared by the Yoga Centre and volunteers, the programme began with the vesper service followed by a welcome and introduction by Swami Sridharananda. Devotees took part in the lively question and answer session on the 6th of May which helped the participants in clarifying their understanding about spiritual life. The retreat brought about a close togetherness among the devotees. It was indeed difficult for them when they had to part at the end of the retreat.

Evil and way to escape from it

We have seen how the greater portion of our life must of necessity be filled with evils, however we may resist, and that this mass of evil is practically almost infinite for us. We have been struggling to remedy this since the beginning of time, yet everything remains very much the same. The more we discover remedies, the more we find ourselves beset by subtler evils. We have also seen that all religions propose a God, as the one way of escaping these difficulties. All religions tell us that if you take the world as it is, as the most practical people would advise us to do in this age, then nothing would be left to us but evil. They further assert that there is something beyond this world. This life in the five senses, life in the material world, is not all; it is only a small portion, and merely superficial. Behind and beyond is the Infinite in which there is no more evil. Some people call it God, some Allah, some Jehovah, Jove, and so on. The Vedantin calls It Brahman.

Remedy should not terminate life

The first impression we get of the advice given by religions is that we had better terminate our existence. To the question how to cure the evils of life, the answer apparently is, to give up life. It reminds one of the old story: A mosquito settled on the head of a man, and a friend, wishing to kill the mosquito, gave it such a blow that he killed both man and mosquito. The remedy of evil seems to suggest a similar course of action. Life is full of ills, the world is full of evils; that is a fact no one who is old enough to know the world can deny.

But what is the remedy proposed by all the religions? That this world is nothing. Beyond this world is something which is very real. Here comes the difficulty. The remedy seems to destroy everything. How can that be a remedy? Is there no way out then? The Vedanta says that what all the religions advance is perfectly true, but it should be properly understood. Often it is misunderstood, because the religions are not very clear in their meaning.

Combination of head and heart

What we really want is head and heart combined. The heart is great indeed; it is through the heart that come the great inspirations of life. I would a hundred times rather have a little heart and no brain, than be all brains and no heart. Life is possible, progress is possible for him who has heart, but he who has no heart and only brains dies of dryness.

At the same time we know that he who is carried along by his heart alone has to undergo many ills, for now and then he is liable to tumble into pitfalls. The combination of heart and head is what we want. I do not mean that a man should compromise his heart for his brain or vice versa, but let everyone have an infinite amount of heart and feeling, and at the same time an infinite amount of reason. Is there any limit to what we want in this world? Is not the world infinite? There is room for an infinite amount of feeling, and so also for an infinite amount of culture and reason. Let them come together without limit, let them be running together, as it were, in parallel lines each with the other.

Carried away by the feeling

Most of the religions understand the fact, but the error into which they all seem to fall is the same; they are carried away by the heart, the feelings. There is evil in the world, give up the world; that is the great teaching, and the only teaching, no doubt. Give up the world. There cannot be two opinions that to understand the truth everyone of us has to give up error. There cannot be two opinions that everyone of us in order to have good must give up evil; there can not be two opinions that everyone of us to have life must give up what is death. And yet, what remains to us, if this theory involves giving up the life of the senses, the life as we know it? And what else do we mean by life? If we give this up, what remains?

Deification of the world

We shall understand this better, when, later on, we come to the more philosophical portions of the Vedanta. But for the present I beg to state that in Vedanta alone we find a rational solution of the problem. Here I can only lay before you what the Vedanta seeks to teach, and that is the deification of the world. The Vedanta does not in reality denounce the world. The ideal of renunciation nowhere attains such a height as in the teachings of the Vedanta. But, at the same time, dry suicidal advice is not intended; it really means deification of the world -- giving up the world as we think of it, as we know it, as it appears to us -- and to know what it really is. Deify it; it is God alone. We read at the commencement of one of the oldest of the Upanishads, "Whatever exists in this universe is to be covered with the Lord." but that you are to see God in the wife. Give up your children; what does that mean? To turn them out doors, as some human brutes do in every country? Certainly not.
That is diabolism; it is not religion.
But see God in your children. So, in everything. In life and in death, in happiness and in misery, the Lord is equally present. The whole world is full of the Lord. Open your eyes and see Him. This is what Vedanta teaches. Give up the world which you have conjectured, because your conjecture was based upon a very partial experience, upon very poor reasoning, and upon your own weakness.

Give it up; the world we have been thinking of so long, the world to which we have been clinging so long, is a false world of our own creation. Give that up; open your eyes and see that as such it never existed; it was a dream, Maya.
What existed was the Lord Himself.
It is He who is in the child, in the wife, and in the husband; it is He who is in the good and in the bad; He is in the sin and in the sinner;
He is in life and in death.

A tremendous assertion indeed! Yet that is the theme which the Vedanta wants to demonstrate, to teach, and to preach. This is just the opening theme.

Desires make us miserable Thus we avoid the dangers of life and its evils. Do not desire anything.
What makes us miserable? The cause of all miseries from which we suffer is desire. You desire something and the desire is not fulfilled; the result is distress. If there is no desire, there is no suffering.
But here, too, there is the danger of my being misunderstood. So it is necessary to explain what I mean by giving up desire and becoming free from all misery. The walls have no desire and they never suffer.
True, but they never evolve. This chair has no desires, it never suffers; but it is always a chair.
There is a glory in happiness, there is a glory in suffering. If I may dare to say so, there is a utility in evil too. The great lesson in misery we all know. There are hundreds of things we have done in our lives which we wish we had never done, but which, at the same time, have been great teachers. As for me, I am glad I have done something good and many things bad; glad I have done something right, and glad I have committed many errors, because every one of them has been a great lesson. I, as I am now, am the resultant of all I have done, all I have thought. Every action and thought have had their effect, and these effects are the sum total of my progress.

Have no idea of proprietorship We all understand that desires are wrong, but what is meant by giving up desires? How could life go on?
It would be suicidal advice, killing the desire and the man too. The solution is this. Not that you should not have property, not that you should not have things which are necessary and things which are even luxuries. Have all that you want, and more, only know the truth and realise it. Wealth does not belong to anybody. Have no idea of proprietorship, possessionary.
You are nobody, nor am I, nor anyone else. All belongs to the Lord, because the opening verse told us to put the Lord in everything. God is in the wealth that you enjoy. He is in the desire that rises in your mind.
He is in the things you buy to satisfy your desire; He is in your beautiful attire, in your beautiful ornaments. This is the line of thought. All will be metamorphosed as soon as you begin to see things in that light. If you put God in your every movement, in your conversation, in your form, in everything, the whole scene changes, and the world, instead of appearing as one of woe and misery, will become a heaven.

Discover the heaven within "The kingdom of heaven is within you," says Jesus; so says the Vedanta, and every great teacher.
"He that hath eyes to see, let him see, and he that hath ears to hear, let him hear." The Vedanta proves that the truth for which we have been searching all this time is present, and was all the time with us.
In our ignorance, we thought we had lost it, and went about the world crying and weeping, struggling to find the truth, while all along it was dwelling in our own hearts. There alone can we find it.

He really works who is unselfish If we understand the giving up of the world in its old, crude sense, than it would come to this: that we must not work, that we must be idle, sitting like lumps of earth, neither thinking nor doing anything, but must become fatalists, driven about by every circumstance, ordered about by the laws of nature, drifting from place to place. That would be the result. But that is not what is meant. We must work. Ordinary mankind, driven everywhere by false desire, what do they know of work? The man propelled by his own feelings and his own senses, what does he know about work? He works, who is not propelled by his own desires, by any selfishness whatsoever. He works, who has no ulterior motive in view. He works, who has nothing to gain from work.

Enjoy as an observer Who enjoys the picture, the seller or the seer? The seller is busy with his accounts, computing what his gain will be, how much profit he will realise on the picture. His brain is full of that. He is looking at the hammer, and watching the bids. He is intent on hearing how fast the bids are rising. That man is enjoying the picture who has nothing to gain from work; who has no intention of buying or selling. He looks at the picture and enjoys it. So this whole universe is a picture, and when these desires have vanished, men will enjoy the world, and then this buying and selling and these foolish ideas of possession will be ended. The money - lender gone, the buyer gone, the seller gone, this world remains the picture, a beautiful painting. I never read of any more beautiful conception of God than work, in every thought, in every to find Him? He is already in every deified, as God Himself, and knowing incessantly, holding life as something God in everything, and knowing So work, says the Vedanta, putting Ignorance is demonical Deify and do you work
So do your work, says the Vedanta.
It first advises us how to work -- by giving up the apparent, illusive world.
What is meant by that? Seeing God everywhere. Thus do you work. Desire to live a hundred years, have all earthly desires, if you wish, only deify them, convert them into heaven. Have the desire to live a long life of helpfulness, of blissfulness and activity on this earth. Thus working, you will find the way out. There is no other way.
If a man plunges headlong into foolish luxuries of the world without knowing the truth, he has missed his footing, he cannot reach the goal. And if a man curses the world, goes into a forest, mortifies his flesh, and kills himself little by little by starvation, makes his heart a barren waste, kills out all feelings, and becomes harsh, stern, and dried-up, that man also has missed the way. These are the two extremes, the two mistakes at either end. Both have lost the way, both have missed the goal.
All search for this state The longing for this blissful universe is in all hearts. It has been the search of all nations, it is the one goal of religion, and this ideal is expressed in various languages in different religions. It is only the difference of language that makes all these apparent divergences. One expresses a thought in one way, another a little differently, yet perhaps each is meaning exactly what the other is expressing in a different language.
Perseverance leads us to conquer More questions arise in connection with this. It is very easy to talk.
From my childhood I have heard of seeing God everywhere and in everything, and then I can really enjoy the world, but as soon as I mix with the world, and get a few blows from it, the idea vanishes.
I am walking in a street thinking that God is in every man, and a strong man comes along and gives me a push and I fall flat on the footpath.
Then I rise up quickly with a clenched fist, and the blood has rushed to my head, and the reflection goes. Immediately I have become mad. Everything is forgotten; instead of encountering God I see the devil. Ever since we were born we have been told to see God in all.
Every religion teaches that -- see God in everything and everywhere.
Do you not remember in the New Testament how Christ says so? We have all been taught that; but it is when we come to the practical side, that the difficulty begins. You all remember how in Aesop's Fables a fine stag is looking at his form reflected in a lake and is saying to his young one, "How powerful I am, look at my splendid head, look at my limbs, how strong and muscular they are; and how swiftly I can run." In the meantime he hears the barking of dogs in the distance, and immediately takes to his heels, and after he has run several miles, he comes back panting. The young one says, "You just told me how strong you were, how was it that when the dog barked, you ran away?" "Yes, my son; but when the dogs bark all my confidence vanishes." Such is the case with us. We think highly of humanity, we feel ourselves strong and valiant, we make grand resolves; but when the "dogs" of trial and temptation bark, we are like the stag in the fable.
Then, if such is the case, what is the use of teaching all these things?
There is the greatest use. The use is this, that perseverance will finally conquer. Nothing can be done in a day.
Have an ideal and cultivate it "This Self is first to be heard, then to be thought upon, and then meditated upon." Everyone can see the sky, even the very worm crawling upon the earth sees the blue sky, but how very far away it is! So it is with our ideal. It is far away, no doubt, but at the same time, we know that we must have it. We must even have the highest ideal.
Unfortunately in this life, the vast majority of persons are groping through this dark life without any ideal at all. If a man with an ideal makes a thousand mistakes, I am sure that the man without an ideal makes fifty thousand. Therefore, it is better to have an ideal. And this ideals we must hear about as much as we can, till it enters into our hearts, into our brains, into our very veins, until it tingles in every drop of our blood and permeates every pore in our body. We must meditate upon it. "Out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh," and out of the fullness of the heart the hand works too.

Struggle in spite of Failures

It is thought which is the propelling force in us. Fill the mind with the highest thoughts, hear them day after day, think them month after month. Never mind failures; they are quite natural, they are the beauty of life, these failures. What would life be without them? It would not be worth having if it were not for struggles. Where would be the poetry of life? Never mind the struggles, the mistakes. I never heard a cow tell a lie, but it is only a cow -- never a man. So never mind these failures, these little backslidings; hold the ideal a thousand times, and if you fail a thousand times, make the attempt once more. The ideal of man is to see God in everything. But if you cannot see Him in everything, see Him in one thing, in that thing which you like best, and then see Him in another. So on you can go. There is infinite life before the soul. How you reach the goal is of no moment. Go on, and never find anything better or higher, are groping in still greater darkness. But he who knows the secret of nature, seeing That which is beyond nature through the help of nature, he crosses death, and through the help of That which is beyond nature, he enjoys Eternal Bliss. "Thou sun, who hast covered the Truth with thy golden disc, do thou remove the veil, so that I may see the Truth that is within thee. I have known the Truth that is within thee, I have known what is the real meaning of thy rays and thy glory and have seen That which shines in thee; the Truth in thee I see, and That which is within thee is within me, and I am That."

Hounds

The hounds of heaven
Bray at our heels,
Our fleeing binds the seven seals, While we hide or while we play.
Ancient seconds tick away,
The reason we run, we can not say.

Some tell it’s a dream,
Of time and motion,
And we and our world, Are but a notion.
If all time’s turmoil,
And living’s clutter,
Is as a dream, does it matter,
That our fretful searching is a bind, Or lofty desires spur our kind?
So we live and so we die,
So we come and so we go;
The reason why, we do not know.

When much chastened, We cease to run, The search for reasons is begun, We turn, and befriend the hounds,
'Till bereft and naked come to be,
Then in wonder it comes to mind;
The spheres keep their eternal rounds,- And cons on we yearn for God, And doggedly Homewards plod, Through biers of belief and fears, Forests of doctrines, dogmas, ideas,
'Till bereft and naked come to be,
Free at last in Eternity.

Then in wonder it comes to mind;
That when God hides, Who but God can find?

— Russell Frank Atkinson (Gurudas)
A devotee from Bellingen, New South Wales, Australia.
Swami Adbhutananda, familiarly and affectionately known as Latu Maharaj, was a true mystic. Through the careful training and divine influence of his guru, Sri Ramakrishna, this unsophisticated village boy became an illumined saint. His brother disciple, Swami Vivekananda once said, “Latu is Ramakrishna’s greatest miracle. Having absolutely no education, he has attained the highest wisdom simply by virtue of Master’s (Sri Ramakrishna’s) touch.” Swami Turiyananda also said of him, “Many of us had to go through the muddy waters of intellectual knowledge before we attained God, but Latu jumped over them like Hanuman. His life teaches us how to live in God without touching the dirt of the world.”

Early life and first meeting with Sri Ramakrishna

Rakhturam – more usually known by Ramakrishna’s name for him, Latu – was the first to come to Sri Ramakrishna. He had been born of very poor parents in a village in Bihar, the state immediately northwest of Bengal. His parents died when he was a child and an uncle looked after him. This uncle was later obliged to leave the village and seek work in Calcutta. Latu went along with him and found employment as a houseboy. His employer – out of all the possible employers in Calcutta – was Ram Chandra Datta. At the time of Latu’s arrival, Ram Chandra had already become a devotee of Ramakrishna, so there was frequent talk of God in the household. Having heard Ram Chandra talk of Sri Ramakrishna, Latu was impatient to visit him. He soon found an opportunity to go to Dakshineswar. In Ramakrishna’s company he felt immediate joy. Latu soon became so devoted to Sri Ramakrishna that he could no longer work for Ram Chandra with his former zest; his only happiness was to be sent by Ram Chandra to Dakshineswar with gifts of sweetmeats for Sri Ramakrishna.

In 1880, Sri Ramakrishna was away from Dakshineswar on what was to be his last visit to Kamarpukur. Latu was miserable. During Ramakrishna’s absence, he would sometimes go to Dakshineswar, but these visits only made him miss Sri Ramakrishna more. When Sri Ramakrishna returned from Kamarpukur, he felt the need of a personal attendant and asked Ram Chandra if he could have Latu. Ram Chandra agreed. So Latu became Ramakrishna’s servant, and this, in itself, was his whole spiritual life. To serve the Guru, to obey him literally and implicitly, was Latu’s way of finding God.

Because Sri Ramakrishna had once mildly reproved him for sleeping during the evening, saying, “If you sleep then, when will you meditate?”, Latu gave up sleeping at night altogether. Instead, he meditated at night, and took short naps only in the day time. He was quite unsophisticated and without education. Sri Ramakrishna, who was very little of the scholar himself, tried to teach Latu to read, but Latu could never master the letters.

Latu’s lack of formal education made him unique among Sri Ramakrishna’s direct disciples. Perhaps because his mind was uncluttered by intellectualism and not trained to doubt, he absorbed the instructions of his guru with unquestioning simplicity. Once the Master told him in an ecstatic mood, “One day the gems of the Vedas and Vedanta will pour forth from your lips.” Thus Latu was commissioned and blessed by his teacher. This prophecy later came to be fulfilled to the letter. It would seem as though Sri Ramakrishna intended to demonstrate to the modern world through Latu that God can be realised without the study of books and scriptures, that spiritual wisdom comes not through intellectualism but through inner realisation.

With Sri Ramakrishna

At Dakshineswar, Latu began a life of rigorous spiritual discipline under the Master’s guidance, coupled...
On 3rd August 1884 both Latu and never forget that form of the Master. Sri Ramakrishna always stressed the necessity of harmonizing the various paths to God. At one time he told a group of disciples “Don’t be one-sided. Our attitude towards the Lord must be symphonic in nature, made up of many instruments. It is a feast of many dishes.” The Master took great pains to develop this ideal in the lives of his young disciples. He led them through the four yogas – the paths of discrimination, devotion, unselfish action, and meditation. At the same time he would select a particular yoga most suitable to the temperament of an individual disciple and recommend that path in order to awaken the disciple’s spiritual energy. Sri Ramakrishna knew that Latu was of an emotional nature; therefore he encouraged him to take part in kirtan, devotional singing.

Latu was extremely fortunate that he got the opportunity to live with Sri Ramakrishna and serve him for over six years.

The grace of the guru was Latu’s only refuge. He did not read any books, but day and night he saw the blazing life of his Master and heard his teachings. Once he said: “I saw the Master in Samadhi many times, but one day I saw his beautiful unique form. His body complexion was changed, and his face radiated fearlessness and compassion. I shall never forget that form of the Master.”

On 3rd August 1884 both Latu and Mahendra Nath Gupta (known as M) had the opportunity to see the Master’s divine form, about which M. recorded later- “Presently the Master left them, going in the direction of the pine trees. After a few minutes M. and Latu, standing in the Panchavati, saw the Master coming back toward them. Behind him the sky was black with the rain-cloud. Its reflection in the Ganges made the water darker. The disciples felt that the Master was God Incarnate, a Divine Child, five years old, radiant with the smile of innocence and purity——. The presence of this God-man charged the trees, shrubs, flowers, plants, and temples with spiritual fervour and divine joy.”

At Baranagore Monastery

As some disciples of the Master had already taken monastic vows, Vivekananda asked Latu also to take vows. Latu agreed at once. According to the custom, before the sannyasa ceremony, one performs one’s own shraddha ceremony (funeral rites), thus severing all ties with the world and ensuring liberation for one’s family. During the shraddha ceremony, Latu followed his own unconventional method. Instead of repeating the Sanskrit mantras, he simply evoked his departed ancestors in his own guileless way and offered food and other articles to them. After he became a sannyasin Latu Maharaj stayed at Baranagore Monastery for a year and a half.

Days of Austerity

As prescribed in the Bhagavad-Gita Latu Maharaj surrendered himself to Sri Ramakrishna wholeheartedly. After the Master’s passing away, he went through various kinds of sadhanas; he explained, “It is he (Sri Ramakrishan) who is taking me by the hand through all these disciplines.” From 1886 to 1912 when he moved permanently to Varanasi, Latu Maharaj lived almost entirely in the Calcutta area, not far from the places that Sri Ramakrishna had stayed and often visited. Yet even in the city he lived the life of a wandering monk, unattached to people or places.

With his Brother Monks

Sri Ramakrishna bound his young disciples with love and they always loved one another. When Latu had pneumonia at Baranagore, his brother disciples nursed him like loving mothers. Latu Maharaj also took care of them in the similar manner.

He lived till 1920 and kept his mind was filled with the thoughts of Sri Ramakrishna; he explained, “It is he (pointing to himself): “Here God alone exists. Do not forget this.” “How can I forget someone who loves me so much?” answered Latu Maharaj. And he never forgot. Throughout his life, his mind was filled with the thoughts of Sri Ramakrishna and he would sometimes reveal to others the substance of these thoughts. Latu Maharaj completely fulfilled the name –“Adbhutananda,” one who enjoys the wonderful bliss of Brahman.
